Veck Hurls Bullet Victory In Connie Mack Tourney

Behind the three-hit pitching of Jack Veck, the Torrance Bullets won their third straight game in the Compton Invitational Connie Mack Tournament by nudging San Pedro 4 to 3 at Cressey Park Friday night.

Veck, with 10 strikeouts to his credit and leading 4 to 1 going into the final frame, weakened to allow two runs to score before being relieved by Ken Turner, who stopped the rally and reserved Veck's win.

In the final inning, the first

San Pedro man walked, and the next man up drove him in. The runner stole second and went to third on a passed ball.

The next man up walked and a fly ball to right field accounted for the first out and the second run of the inning. The runner on first advanced to second on the throw to the plate.

With the scoreboard reading 4 to 3, Turner came in to relieve Veck. He whiffed the next man for the second out. Turner then attempted to pick off a runner at first and threw wild, putting the tying run at third and the winning run at second. He threw a wild pitch and with the tying run coming down the line, catcher Czarsky retrieved the ball and relayed it to Turner who made the tag for the final out.

The Bullets will play Monrovia tomorrow night at 8:45 p.m.

Steve Pipkins pitched five hit ball for the Bullets to get credit for the squad's second win in tournament play as the Torrance club romped to a 6 to 3 win over Hawthorne.

Pipkins was in trouble only once, in the last inning when Hawthorne scored twice off of him.

Joe Austin's 380-ft. home run and Turner's no-hit pitching proved to be too much for the Compton Colts as the Bullets took a 7 to 2 triumph for their first tournament win.

Turner whiffed four and allowed four walks. The Colts gained only one earned run off of him.

Mike Andrews belted two triples and Austin contributed a double in addition to his tape-measure home run. The Bullets belted out ten hits altogether.
